Washington, Sept. 21.

I am able to send you further particulars of cluster of States. It properly belong to our great valley of the Ohto. It the States of that valuey are severally true to themselves, they will be true to each other. They should take every occasion to make known their detormination to remain one and inseparable, let the balance of the Union break into what fragments it may. The knowledge of that fact would go dra the silence all disunion schemes and agitations. For, if it be conceded that the States in this valley are unalierably determined never to separate, disunion will cease to be a peril in our national career. It would no longer be in the power of man to break up the Union, or if at all, e retainly not upon any dividing line west of the Hudson, or east of the Rocky Mountains. The desire for our commerce will alwayse grapple to us New York and Pennsylvania as the northern buttress, and the lower valley of the Musitssippin active southern buttress of the Federal arch. By thus binding them to us they will be bound to each other, and all lying between them with be compressed into unity, and the Union thus become udestructible. A mare aliver knocked offrom the Northeast or Southeast, or even detaching the great bulk lying weat of the Rocky Mountains, would not materially i jure either the prosperity, the strength, er the durability of the remainder. Can it be, that in any hour of mad pension we convelves will pull assunder the glorious arch, and bring it down it destruction upon ourselves:

But her slave properly is far from being the most important interest of Kentucky, either in a pecuniary, social, or political point of view. In all these aspects there is another thing in which she has a much deeper and more paramount interest. That other greater interest is the preservation of the Union. The great body of the wealth of every State is in the land. To give proper value to that land, it must afford peaceful, prosperous homes to its inhabitants.

It must have facile access to its natural commercial outlets and marks. Break up the Union on the slave line, destroy the bonds of annity between the North and South; and we shall become two hostile nations, seeking pothing but mutual injury and destruction. Where they will be our commerce? We shall have none Our great outlet on the guilt will be blockeded by anaval force from the North, and all access to the boat Atlantic marks cut of The owners of slaves would immediately run the most of them to safer localities. With an undefended and indefens ble border of seven hundred miles.

we should be perpetually liable to predatory in reads of armed invaders. Everywhere throug our State war would soon leave its bread track of ruin. It is true that Kentuckians are not of ruin. It is true that amount is not a larger acce who would iamely submit to such injuries. They would have vengeance, and infinite similar injuries on our neighbors north of the river. Vengeance may be sweet, but it is not always profitable. Their lipiury would not be our profit. When Kentucky can no longer give peaceful and prosperous homes to her citizens, what then will not be value of her land?

When Kentucky can no longer give peaceful and prosperous homes to her citizens, what then will be the value of her land?

It would be arrogating for our people perhaps too much to claim for them a very high degree of that moral quality which makes devoted, disinterested pariotilem. But if patriotism he evinced in its higher properties by a loyal devotion to the Union, then we may safely ciaim that Kentuckians have no superiors and but few equals in devotion to their country. In their opinion disunion is a renedy for nothing, but is in itself the worst of evils. There breathes not a single disunionism within all her bounds. It may be that our position make self-interest and patriolism identical. Happy for us if it be so; unhappy for these localities, if any such there be, where interest and duty are not equally blended. But be the fact with us as it may; he it an enlightened sali-interest, or the nobler

THE DEMOCRATIC CORRUPTION FUND .-- We Mr. Buchanan on a recent occasion, be nentlened not long since a circular issued by ing colled out by a crowd of his partisans, told the Central Democratic Executive Committee them that he should be glad to make them a at Washington, and addressed to the various speech, but that, as he was a camildate for the persons throughout the country who hold offices Presidency, etiquette if not propriety forbade them imperatively to send in the names of the inridge keenly feel such a rebuke from such a oreigners in their respective neighborhoods, quarter? and certain sums of money to aid in defraying the expenses of the party in the Presidential election. The Postmaster at Liberty, Amite unty, Mississippi, received one of these cirulars, but declined to obey its behests. He was thereupou removed from office. In a card to the public he says:

I have not yet sent off the names of the foreigners in th ichnity, as lately required; nor did I thinh that i could a lord to set as idea a jortion of the small income of the effice sentimened and Bemocratic documents to them. Wheth Of all the phases of proscription, this is the most abominable and disgusting. No Postmaster, while discharging the dutles of his office, in comply with the demands of this secret cifications of their several patents as will e Democratic circular without committing per- ble c jury; and, because this Misslssippi Postmaster was too honest to perjure himself at the tyran-nical dictation of his party-managers, he is great improvement in the manufacture proscribed and removed from his office. HON J. R. UNDERWOOD.-We have been favored with the perusal of a long letter from this gentleman on the pending election, and much regret that the crowded state of our columns will preven us from laying it entire before our readers. It contains some interest ng reminiscences of what transpired whilst he was in the Senate on the slave question, which i may well deserve publication at a moment of more leisure. Whilst declining to stump the his official position to cooperate with a wreich upon the floor of the Senate for the prostration of a political opponent. And the charge never was and never could be denied.

It is report is very voluminous, embracing all be testimony taken by him while on the 1sthmus. It is addiessed to the Secretary of State and is now on fife in the State Department.

Mr. Corwine states that the riot was com we are told that a son or Daniel Webuter is a member by a grames Bichanan for the Presidence by the subsequent attack upon the railroad annualture. We know of but one more melancholy, and we have alluded to that often advance, in which the authorities of Panam and the presidence of the subsequent attack upon the railroad annual trailing and the firing upon the passengers were not president and the firing upon the passengers were not presented to the subsequent and the subsequent attack upon the railroad and the subsequent attack upon the passengers were the subsequent attack upon the passengers were the subsequent attack upon the subsequent a

As the conclusion of the whole matter, Mr. Corwine inports that the government of New Granada is utterly unable to maintain law and order, and incomp tent to the protection of pastengers and property crossing the Lithmus. He end spill stidds few years to gustain this position. He also recommends THE IMMEDIATE OCCU which American lives and properly require protection.

The report engages the attention of the President and Cabinet. A streng disposition is evinced in some quarters to act immediately upon its recommendations. It is probable, however, that nothing decisive will be done until after the Presidential election. The effect of an immediate movement upon the result of the canvass is feared.

You may rely upon it, however, that Mi. Corwine would not have urged so bold a pone; as this unless certain of being backed up by the Government. He has been appointed consult at Panama, and, unless supported by the administration, would be very likely to have his exequatur refused by the New Granadian Government for such a recommendation.
